

ALL TOGETHER, NOW—A sure sign that school will begin soon is the pre-school band practice which was started Monday night by musicians of Savannah High School. William Clark (left photo), the new band director, has called practices for every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night at 7:30, and invites interested musicians to attend. When the football team is ready to take the field, so will the band be ready. The bass horn player is Edward Simmons, and the pretty clarinetist is Sandra Tuten. (Evening Press photos by Gene Taggart)
